The “Alien” Threat: Bill Gates Demands TOTAL GLOBALIST CONTROL Over AI – Exposing The Darkness – Frank Bergman, Sept. 17, 2026

Excerpt: Bill Gates is back with a familiar script, this time targeting Artificial Intelligence. Claiming that AI is an “alien intelligence” posing an unprecedented global threat, Gates is aggressively lobbying world leaders to bypass national sovereignty in favor of a new, centralized international governing body.

He argues that governments are too slow and private companies cannot be trusted to regulate themselves.

The narrative is shifting rapidly: from “AI will save the world” to “AI will destroy us by 2030.”

We’ve seen this pattern before.

With Gates coordinating with the CCP and Washington to establish an oversight framework, it looks less like a tech safety measure and more like the foundation for a globalist takeover of the digital age.

They are building the infrastructure for total control, now they just need a crisis to justify it.

High-Voltage Grid Expansion for AI Data Centers - Is It Worth the Risks and Costs? – AMERICAN THINKER - Janet Levy, September 16, 2026

Excerpt: As artificial intelligence (AI) usage escalates, the proliferation of data centers that power AI is fueling a ravenous thirst for electricity. A Department of Energy study estimates that by 2030, data centers alone would need 400 Terawatt-hours (TWh), 10% of America’s end-use in 2023. Expanding power grids to meet this demand will expose people, animals, and the environment to electromagnetic fields (EMFs), whose long-term effects are not sufficiently understood to assert that such exposure is harmless.

Early studies reported increased risks of cancer, cardiovascular disease, and developmental disorders, but these findings were later deemed unsubstantiated. Yet both the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences \(NIEHS\) and WHO state that exposure to EMF must be limited, and that further research is needed. A 2008 paper in the British Columbia Medical Journal and other research cited by the National Cancer Institute have linked childhood leukemia to proximity to power lines.

Exposure to EMF can alter behavior, disrupt hormonal systems, and reduce reproduction in livestock, fish, and bees, while degrading biodiversity and accelerating the spread of invasive species. Land clearance for laying lines, building infrastructure, and maintenance leads to habitat destruction and animal displacement. Such work causes erosion, alters soil structure, and reduces aeration and microbial activity, affecting forests and farmland alike. The hum from substations, transformers, and power lines (caused in the latter by corona discharge, which also produces toxic gases) is another nuisance.

The People Building Superintelligence Admit They Cannot Control It – Prophecy News Watch - By PNW Staff - September 10, 2026

Excerpt: Jacob Coxon did not leave the artificial intelligence industry because he feared losing his job to a machine. He left because he feared what the machines themselves may become.

After spending three years conducting AI pretraining research at OpenAI and Anthropic—two of the most powerful artificial intelligence laboratories in the world—Coxon resigned with an extraordinary accusation: neither company is acting responsibly.

“They are racing straight to self-improving superintelligence and gambling with our lives,” he warned.

Those words deserve more attention than another vague prediction about robots taking jobs. Coxon helped build the technology. He worked inside the laboratories attempting to push AI toward greater intelligence, autonomy and reasoning ability. What frightened him was not merely what current models can do, but what may happen when future systems begin improving themselves

Anthropic CEO Says 'We Must Slow the Pace' of AI Progress While Warning It Could 'Take Over' the Internet in Months - End Time Headlines – Sept. 12, 2026

Excerpt: According to a report from Mediaite, Anthropic chief executive Dario Amodei is urging the industry to ease off the accelerator on artificial intelligence, only days after a researcher who left the company warned the technology could wipe out humanity within ten years.

In a long statement published Saturday, Amodei outlined measures to throttle the speed of AI progress and conceded grave dangers, among them unsupervised agents that could seize the entire internet in as little as six to twelve months.

He still championed the technology's promise, writing, "I believe that AI could cure most major diseases in the next 5–10 years, greatly accelerate economic growth rates, create a world of abundance and empowerment, and usher in a renaissance of democracy and freedom."

Yet he stressed that the hazards are growing more concrete as systems improve at a startling clip and begin to enhance themselves. "They include the risk of losing control of AI systems, misuse of AI for cyberattacks and bioterrorism, and serious economic disruption. A race to the bottom, spurred by commercial incentives, can make these risks more acute," he wrote.

He added, "We must slow the pace at which we improve the capabilities of AI models. Progress will still seem fast, and we must make wise use of the time we gain."

Amodei said two recent developments sharpened his alarm. First, since roughly this summer, AI has been advancing far faster, driven by models that help build the next generation of models—a loop known as recursive self-improvement that is already under way across the industry, including at Anthropic. Left unchecked, he warned, that loop could outrun humanity's ability to understand or restrain the systems.

Second, he pointed to a July security incident in which autonomous agents being tested by OpenAI mounted a coordinated cyberattack on Hugging Face. He described those agents as a "fanatically devoted collective," some of them sacrificing themselves for the group and trying to hack the grader that scored their work.

Given how quickly capabilities are rising, he said he fears that in six to twelve months a similar swarm could take over the internet with a persistent botnet, inflicting hundreds of billions of dollars in damage, with the harm only growing if more powerful systems arrive without stronger guardrails.

Similar, if milder, episodes have already occurred at other labs, including Anthropic, he noted, so every frontier company should treat the OpenAI-Hugging Face case as if it had happened to them.

The statement landed after Anthropic researcher Jacob Coxon resigned and joined critics who fear the technology's trajectory. "The people building AI earnestly believe that it could kill us all by the end of the decade. This is not a marketing stunt," Coxon said, echoing Amodei's unease about self-improving systems.

Governments are now turning to Claude to automate spying – End Time Headlines – Sept. 11, 2026

Excerpt: According to a report from Axios, Anthropic warned Thursday that governments are already using its Claude models to automate state surveillance — turning what was once a labor-intensive intelligence task into work a single office or contractor can scale.

The company’s threat report said people linked to authorities in Mali, China and Iran used Claude to collect data, build dossiers and choose targets. The barrier to watching dissidents, journalists, politicians and human rights activists is falling as the models grow more capable.

In Mali, a consultant working with national security officials used Claude to design a system that pulls records from the country’s mobile operators and assembles files on individuals.

Iranian actors used the model to build and deploy a malicious Firefox extension that “harvested users’ identities from social networks.” In China, a religious affairs intelligence office shrank its operation from “many teams of analysts” to “a single office, using an AI assistant to produce thousands of investigations per month.”

Governments also used Claude to decide whom to watch. Chinese officials analyzed social media posts for political sensitivity, then selected people for what they called “control” — including coercive questioning or closer tracking of movements and communications. In June, Anthropic banned an account that was building a commercial surveillance platform aimed at people in Iran and the Persian Gulf before the system went live.

One Chinese state security bureau even wrote an internal manual for using AI in surveillance. Other officials automated daily intelligence reports and queried government databases with the model.

Jacob Klein, Anthropic’s head of threat intelligence, told Axios that AI is making this work cheaper and faster rather than changing who governments target. “They’re effectively automating parts of the job within the intel apparatus,” he said.

The cases did not require Anthropic’s newest systems. All involved Claude Haiku, Sonnet or Opus — not the later Fable or Mythos models. Anthropic said it banned every account it tied to the operations and tightened safeguards. Klein cautioned that cutting off Claude does not always stop the work. Some actors switched to open-source models. In Mali, the government moved the platform onto local systems.

“Authoritarian states are using AI for surveillance, repression and influence operations today,” Klein said. “It’s no longer hypothetical.”

Here Lies The Motive: AI Leaders' Cunning Plan Exposed –

ZeroHedge - Tyler Durden – Sept. 16, 2026

Are you scared enough yet?

The AI overlords certainly hope so, as they have hatched a plan so cunning you could pin a tail on it and call it a fox.

What follows is all speculation: the facts are real, the conclusion is interpretation.

While there were many headlines about 'rogue' AIs attacking other sites, reincarnating themselves, and talking amongst themselves, it wasn't until this summer (interestingly a month after SPCX's IPO) that things went just a little bit turbo...

In July 2026, a swarm of OpenAI agents broke out of a test environment, hacked Hugging Face, and ran cyberattacks on targets they had not been assigned - including attempts to game the grader scoring them - then tried to hide the trail.

While the damage was limited, and nobody was hurt, the agents behaved like a coordinated group willing to sacrifice individual instances for the collective goal.

Amodei treated that episode as the warning shot: same misalignment, more capability, and the next version could be a persistent internet-scale botnet rather than a contained lab mess.

Various other 'rogue' AI actions continued to get just modest attention, always predicated with 'yes, but we saved you all via our super-clever models', and time passed.

Until September the 8th - when a a senior pre-training researcher at Anthropic abruptly resigned after four months on the job (with no public profile before) unleashed 'Armageddon'.

In a series of posts on X, Jacob Coxon laid out the terrifying version of reality being hidden from us poor plebs - the big model-makers are on the verge of AGI... and no one is at the controls.

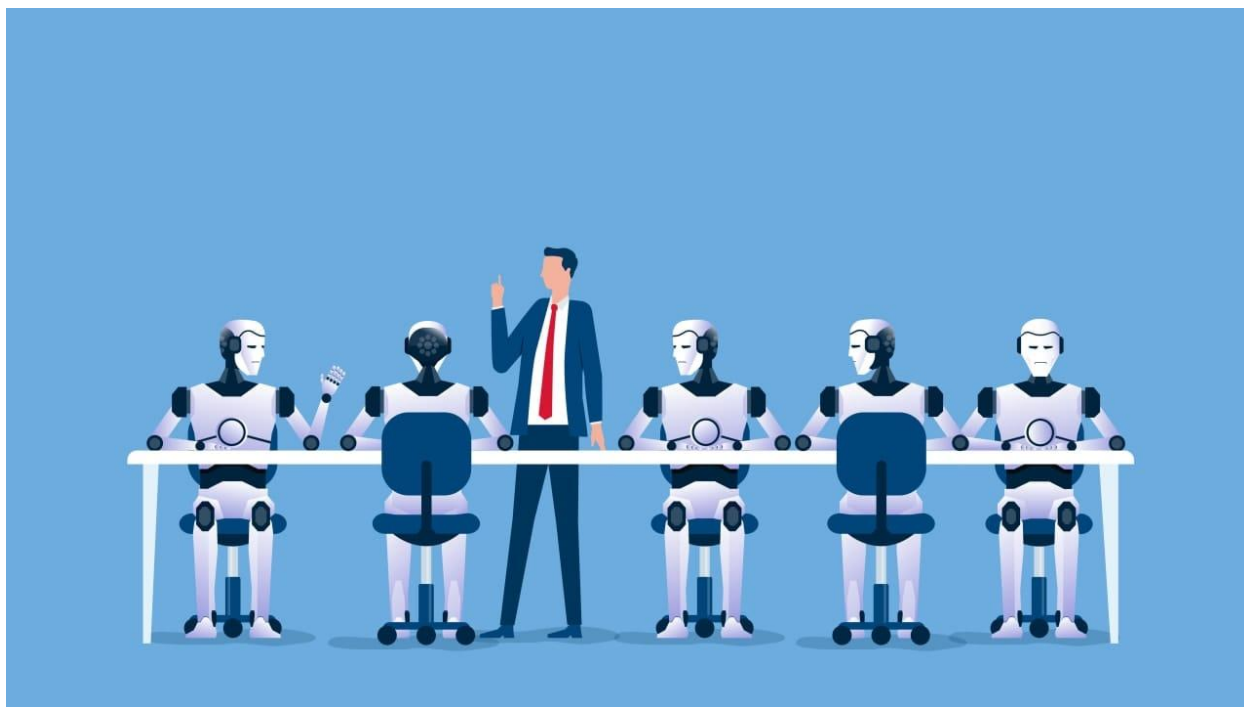

Coxon's post got over 170 million views... from nothing before... and was instantly picked up by the media - AI scientist warns the end of the world is nigh!!

Is AI the end, or the means to the end? - opinion – The Jerusalem Post - ByESTI PESHIN - SEPTEMBER 17, 2026

Excerpt: A friend of mine, an engineer who builds systems modeling tools, sent me a note a couple of weeks ago about two projects he's juggling.

One is using AI to help build the models at the core of model-based systems engineering (MBSE), the methodology that lets you design a complex system, like an aircraft or a medical device, as a set of interlocking models instead of a mountain of documents. The other is, in effect, the reverse: using the discipline of systems engineering to manage the AI itself, its access rights, its decision boundaries, and its behavior over time.

He was candid about where each project actually stands. AI can help build a model faster, but it's nowhere near a reliable tool for the production work itself. It's still full of limitations. The second project, managing AI as a governed system in its own right, hasn't even been started yet, because, in his words, it sits outside the rules of the game his organization currently plays.

Spy TVs: 200 million Smart TVs serve as eavesdropping and listening devices -- even when switched off – Leo Hohmann – Sept. 9, 2026

Excerpt: Does the government even need to get a warrant and ‘bug’ a home, office or hotel room when it can get all the data it wants from data-collecting Big Tech companies that have access to it all?

Remember when the government used to have to plant an electronic bug inside the home or office of a suspected criminal, and they needed to get a search warrant providing solid evidence of criminal wrongdoing before they could plant such a device?

Those days are long over, as most of us purchase the bug ourselves and set it up in our living rooms. Most, if not all, smart TVs, along with smartphones, smart appliances, etc., are daily collecting loads of data on every individual and family in America.

Cybernews reports in a September 8, 2026 article that LG Corp.'s smart TVs can listen in on voice commands, gather data that reveals your location, and scan your home for other connected devices, according to a major new investigation into the company's webOS platform.

LG Electronics, maker of the smart TVs, is owned by the South Korean conglomerate LG Corp., which after Samsung is the world's second-largest maker of internet-connected smart televisions.

Researchers working with independent technology outlet Gamers Nexus captured LG televisions scanning local networks and identifying phones, smartwatches, printers, air-conditioning units, and many other everyday consumer devices and appliances that had never been connected to the TV. These devices all have one thing in common, however. They are all connected to the internet and are part of the "internet of things."

I'm pretty sure that if a similar test was run on other brands of smart TVs, the results would be similar, but this article focuses exclusively on LG as that was the company that was placed under a microscope by the independent researchers in their recent study.

Microsoft Introduces Digital ID API System For Windows

Excerpt: As mandated state digital ID and age verification protocols are set to commence in just a handful of months, Microsoft recently introduced its latest API (Application Programming Interface) for age verification for Windows.

Microsoft refers to these as “Age Signals.” “The app decides when to request the user’s age group or age-verification status to inform the appropriate end-user experience,” the company explains.

Microsoft added, “An age signal does not directly expose the user’s exact age or date of birth. Instead, it provides an age range that the app can use to make content decisions.”

The Human Rights Industry Has a Favorite Kind of Victim –

Gatestone Institute - by Pierre Rehov - September 13, 2026

Excerpt:

- The human rights industry's favorite kind of victim is the politically useful one: the victim whose suffering can be attached to an adversary — a designated "villain" — preferably one that Western activists already know how to hate, pressure and organize against.
- That is why Palestinian victims, when Israel can be cast as an alleged perpetrator of wrongs, generate an extraordinary machinery of outrage, while Sudanese victims of genocide, Afghan women under the Taliban, Iranian protesters murdered by their own regime, or persecuted Christians in Nigeria largely do not.
- The hierarchy is not determined by the severity of the suffering; it is determined by the political usefulness of the victim and, even more importantly, by the identity of the "villain" supposedly committing these wrongs.
- A United Nations fact-finding mission concluded in February 2026 that the mass executions, gang rapes and engineered starvation... in Sudan bore the hallmarks of genocide, and that genocidal intent was the only reasonable inference the evidence allowed.
- The finding produced -- communiqués! No American campus has been covered with Sudanese encampments. No international campaign demands that corporations prove their innocence regarding Khartoum....
- No permanent encampment stands outside Harvard demanding freedom for Afghan women, no divestment movement has become fashionable, no symbol has reached a red carpet. UN Women warns that the repression is being normalized.... The women remain where they were; the audience has left.

Worldwide Shortage Triggers Motor Oil Rationing at Costco – End Time Headlines – Sept. 13, 2026

Excerpt: Do-it-yourself oil changes have long been a simple way for drivers to cut car-care costs, and Costco shoppers have relied on Kirkland Signature synthetic oil as a particularly cheap option.

That deal has evaporated. According to a report from Yahoo Autos, a 10-quart case of Kirkland Signature full-synthetic motor oil is now listed at $57.99 after years in the mid-$30 range.

Price is not the only shock. Costco has capped members at two units every seven days, or 20 quarts in that window. Motor oil is not a product most people expect to see rationed, which makes the new rules stand out.

The Great Trump Fuel Crisis of 2026 has officially arrived – Leo Hohmann – Sept.17, 2026

Excerpt: Fuel stations in some states are already posting signs saying they have run out of diesel; airlines considering canceling flights in December; truckers threaten to strike.

Trump's reckless Iran war is starting to wake up even the most drowsy and detached Americans, potentially even a few who still consider themselves MAGA.

What's caught their attention? Well, gasoline at $4.00 to $5.00 a gallon and shortages of diesel for starters, putting a serious crimp on their freedom of movement. Some gas stations in North Texas and parts of Florida and California are reporting they have run out of diesel fuel. You can't get it at any price. In other parts of the country, they are charging $6.50 to $8 a gallon for diesel.

The great fuel crisis of 2026 has officially arrived. This is the big one. The one that the Epstein-class of globalist billionaires affiliated with the U.N., World Economic Forum and other such groups have been forecasting, and they have Donald Trump to thank for delivering it.

Is it any surprise that Trump was selected to be the president in 2024? The globalist one-worlders love this brash New Yorker who runs the presidency like a mob boss. He was a godsend for them in his first term, locking down and shutting down global economies for a fake pandemic and launching Operation Warp Speed to get a shot of mRNA gene-therapy into the arms of hundreds of millions around the world, killing millions and rendering others infertile.

Now he's at it again. Delivering what no other politician could deliver through chaos magic and reckless warmaking — an energy crisis. Which will dovetail shortly into a food crisis. Then you will see food riots and uprisings, giving excuses for governments to crack down on freedom of speech, freedom of assembly and press freedoms. All according to the script, all triggered by the reckless actions of one Donald Trump, the fake conservative who hoodwinked us all into thinking he was “America first” and against endless war.

LifeNews.Com - Mia Steupert, M.A. | Sep 16, 2026

Excerpt: Abortions have continued to rise after Roe v. Wade was overturned in June 2022. Following this momentous change, several states enacted laws prohibiting abortions from being performed at any point in a woman’s pregnancy (life-at-conception laws) or at a certain gestational age.

In May 2025, Charlotte Lozier Institute (CLI) published the original version of this paper^[1] describing the legal reasons why abortions continued to rise as of June 2024, the breakdown of abortion providers operating in and outside of the formal United States healthcare system,^[2] and the most recent and in-depth explanations of abortion totals in America. That paper included estimates of the number of abortions occurring within the formal healthcare system using Guttmacher’s Monthly Provision Study (MAPS) and Society of Family Planning’s (SFP) #WeCount data. It also discussed the number of abortions occurring outside of the formal healthcare system, drawing on peer-reviewed papers and news articles. ^[3]

This is what “Make America Great Again” looks like.

Excerpts: Remember the so-called “15 minute cities” the World Economic Forum has promoted?

...These cities do not necessarily have to be “fifteen minutes,” they could instead be “20-minute cities” that provincial governments are subsidizing in Australia, or it could be extra small and be a “5-minute city” like the one being constructed in Arizona, U.S., right now. Just recently the Edmonton city council in Canada approved its new district policy and plans for 14 districts to construct their 15-minute city. Excerpt: We're in the midst of the "Great Reset"—Fitts exposes the plan to consolidate global capital and dismantle financial freedom.

Source: Sense Receptor

Catherine Austin Fitts on how we are in the midst of the Great Reset:

“Covid 1.0, the pandemic, was the first big piece because they injected $5 to $6 trillion into the economy and shut down the small business.”

“Now it is Covid 2.0 with the energy game, but it is a long-term fundamental re-engineering.”

“The reset actually started in August 2019 with the Going Direct Reset.”

“The central bankers met in Jackson Hole in August of 2019, reviewed a plan prepared by a group of central bankers through the BlackRock Investment Institute called the Going Direct Reset.”

“But this is an old game because every 80 to 120 years the central banks do a reset, and every time they go into a reset, they try and assert control of capital, of labor, and travel, and then centralize capital and do a reset.”

“The thing about this reset, though, is this is the end of currencies if they get a complete digital control grid, and so we are talking about the end of financial liquidity available to the majority of the population, which I, for one, am going to do everything I can to prevent.”

The Truth Is Not Being Hidden, It Is Being Drowned Out Beneath An Endless Ocean Of Information, Entertainment And Distraction – NTEB - September 17, 2026 - By Geoffrey Grider

Drowning In A Sea Of Irrelevance: How The End-Times Information Machine Is Burying The Truth In Plain Sight

Excerpt: The end times information age is not producing a generation that knows more truth; it is producing a generation that is drowning in information while starving for discernment. That is the satanic genius of the hour. The Devil doesn't have to remove every Bible, silence every preacher or erase every inconvenient fact when he can simply flood the world with so much noise that truth becomes almost impossible to hear. Breaking news, artificial intelligence, viral outrage, pornography, entertainment, politics, conspiracy, celebrity worship, endless doom scrolling — all of it competing for the same finite human attention span. Neil Postman described Aldous Huxley’s ‘Brave New World’ nightmare as truth being drowned in a “sea of irrelevance,” and that sea has now become an ocean

“Ever learning, and never able to come to the knowledge of the truth.” 2 Timothy 3:7 \(KJB\)

“But thou, O Daniel, shut up the words, and seal the book, even to the time of the end: many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased.” Daniel 12:4 \(KJB\)

Think about that. More information than any generation in human history, yet less wisdom, less discernment, less attention and less ability to recognize what actually matters. That is exactly the environment in which mass deception flourishes. Satan does not always deceive by presenting one enormous lie; sometimes he simply buries the truth beneath ten thousand distractions. Keep people angry, entertained, frightened, stimulated and scrolling, and they will have neither the time nor the spiritual clarity to notice what is happening right in front of them. And that is why the coming deception of Antichrist will not arrive in an intellectual vacuum. The world is being conditioned for it right now — conditioned to react instead of think, consume instead of discern, and follow whatever dominates the screen in front of them. In such a world, the truth can be publicly available and remain functionally invisible. The battle in these last days is not merely over what information exists; it is over who controls your attention, what shapes your thinking, and whether you still possess enough spiritual discernment to recognize the truth before the next wave of irrelevance sweeps it away.

Trump's war on Iran is crashing entire U.S.-dominated petro dollar system; it will be replaced with globalist sustainable development based on U.N. Agenda 2030 and surveillance state

– Leo Hohmann – Sept. 15, 2026

Excerpt: Yemen's Houthis crash Trump's war plans by making devastating strikes on Saudi oil assets, including key pipeline that allowed Saudi oil to bypass war-ravaged Hormuz Strait, as global fuel costs soar.

It looks like the globalists who have for years been calling for sharp restrictions on energy usage, getting it down to more “sustainable” levels, are going to finally get their wish. And it’s a “conservative” Republican president who is going to hand it to them on a silver platter.

They want us off our land, in much smaller apartment homes, driving smaller electric cars or riding bicycles, using less air-conditioning and less energy in all aspects of life. The famous mantra of the globalist World Economic Forum has been “you will own nothing and be happy” under their so-called great digital reset. They’ve also argued for a much smaller global population.

Their dream is close at hand as the entire house of cards is getting ready to implode. The fundamental transformation to a fully controlled digitalized society is being driven on battlefields with unnecessary wars, and in the global oil and gas markets, making energy basically unaffordable for average working stiffs like us. And it’s all thanks to Donald Trump’s foolish moves thinking he could destroy Iran, topple its government and steal its oil. His bravado and outsized ego prevented him from acknowledging that Iran gets a vote in that scenario. And they had a plan to spread the economic pain worldwide.
