The Point At Which Economic Systems Collapse Under The Weight Of AI – Technocracy News - Posted By: Joe Wilkins via Futurism - November 1, 2026

Getty / Futurism

Excerpt: For every doomsday prediction about AI, what it is doing to the economic system has nothing to do with AI. Mal-investment and dis-investment are hollowing out the economy from within. The trillions put into AI are funds that should have been directed into productive companies but those funds have been squandered. Dis-investment is the practice of taking money from productive assets and throwing it down a rathole. And now the AI industry is running out of funds. Do you see the problem? - Patrick Wood, Editor.

At this point, the parade of doomsayers warning of the collapse of the AI bubble is almost endless.

Renowned financial commentators like Harris Kupperman have warned that the math on data center investments is unsustainable, economists like Michael Roberts have called AI the "biggest economic bet in US history," and even the International Monetary Fund has begun fretting that the world economy is on a knife's edge.

But in the ongoing AI gold rush, the wealthy and powerful keep pumping money into AI and its attendant industries anyway.

Now, crypto investor and finance media guru Raoul Pal is warning of his own kind of AI doomsday — but one where an AI takeover, not a bursting bubble, brings the conventional economy to its knees.

California city makes history allowing throuples, foursomes to legally register as partners – End Time Headlines – Nov. 4, 2026

Excerpt: According to a report from the New York Post, a Los Angeles County city has taken a historic step by allowing polyamorous groups to register formally as domestic partners. West Hollywood's city council unanimously approved the measure on Tuesday, introduced by Mayor John Heilman, opening the door for throuples, foursomes, and other multi-partner relationships to gain official city recognition.

The ordinance permits three or more adults to register their relationship with the city clerk, provided they meet basic requirements such as mutual consent and no blood relations.

Registered partners receive limited protections, including hospital visitation rights and rules preventing landlords from ending or refusing to renew a lease simply because a partner remains in the unit. Healthcare facilities and city-operated jails must also honor visitation for these partners. The registration is not restricted to West Hollywood residents.

Supporters describe the change as an important advance for adults whose committed multi-partner arrangements face barriers in housing, healthcare, education, and other services that have long been structured around two-person households.

Bomb Threats Target At Least 15 Passenger Flights Across Europe As Fighter Jets Scramble And A New Wave Of Aviation Chaos Puts Spotlight On Russia – NTEB - November 5, 2026 - By Geoffrey Grider

Excerpt: Europe Faces Another Wave Of Airline Bomb Threats As Anonymous Warnings Trigger Military Responses And Expose The Vulnerability Of A Society Dependent On Uninterrupted Travel

Someone is demonstrating just how quickly Europe's skies can be thrown into turmoil. Around fifteen passenger flights targeted by bomb threats in a single day, fighter jets scrambled, aircraft diverted, and security teams mobilized across national borders. This follows earlier waves of threats during the same week. Searches have found no explosives, but the disruption payload has already been delivered with interrupted journeys, frightened passengers, military responses and costly investigations. Whoever is responsible has exploited a vulnerability that every traveler should understand—authorities must take a potential bomb seriously, even when an anonymous warning is the only evidence that one exists. The chaos comes two days after around ten commercial flights, including two from the UK, were targeted by bomb threats. In a seemingly unrelated story, a Russian military spacecraft that approached a Western satellite last month could have been rehearsing an attack, a military space specialist said.

"What time I am afraid, I will trust in thee." Psalm 56:3 (KJB)

Could Russia or Iran be behind the threats to commercial flights in Europe? It is either one of them, mostly likely Russia. In March 2026, Eurojust announced that investigators had identified twenty-two suspects in a separate incendiary-parcel operation allegedly connected to Russian military intelligence. One package caught fire at Leipzig airport shortly before being loaded onto an aircraft. Britain's MI5 has also reported tracking more than twenty potentially lethal Iran-backed plots in a single year, largely involving targeted violence against opponents. These are documented allegations from security and judicial authorities, and they show why foreign involvement deserves scrutiny. Responsibility for this week's airline threats remains unidentified at the moment.

One World Babel: Microsoft Patents AI That Can Rewrite People's Sentences And Lip-Sync Them In Real-Time – The WinePress – Nov. 2, 2026

The same tool can change what a speaker appears to say, and the filing mentions swapping in facts from a search and removing certain words, with only one dependent claim saving the original recording.

Earlier this year it was discovered that Microsoft submitted a patent for an AI that can rewrite what people say live and is accurately lip-synched as well. The complex AI model can redraw the mouth of the speaker to conceal the edits, and can be used for real-time language translation.

First filed on April 29th of this year and made public on October 29th, Patentlyze reported:

Ever sat through a presentation where the speaker says 'um' and 'you know' every few seconds? Microsoft has filed a patent application for software that would clean that up while the talk is still happening, right on your own device.

An AI would listen to the live audio and flag words you would rather not hear, using a profile you set up (things like your age, the languages you speak, or where you live). Then it swaps in better words and redraws the speaker's mouth in the video so the lips match. Short blended transitions hide the seams.

The same setup could work as a translator. If someone speaks a language that isn't in your profile, you would hear and see them speaking yours. The delay would be a few seconds, not a full edit job afterward.

An exact quote from the patent:

"... identifying, from a plurality of spoken words as scanned from the live audio recording, one or more spoken words to modify according to a first set of parameters and based on a profile of a user, using the AI agent ..."

In other words, the AI determines what words to change or remove based on the selected preferences.

The filing reveals that words such as "um," slang, mumbling or mispronounced words, profanity or blacklisted words, and background noise could be removed. "Replacement words can come from an internet search, and the filing also floats instant fact-checking," the report also noted.

AI Christian Rock Song by Fake "Artist" Called "Tell Me, How is Heaven?" Is Number ONE On Itunes – End Time Headlines – Nov. 3, 2026

Excerpt: According to a report from Showbiz411, the rapid rise of artificial intelligence in music production has now reached the Christian faith market, where a fully synthetic track has claimed the number one spot on the easily manipulated iTunes chart. The song, titled "Tell Me, How is Heaven?," was created on the Suno platform and is credited to a group identified as May the Lord Studio.

Released in July, the accompanying YouTube video has accumulated 2.6 million views. The track centers on themes of grieving and loss, drawing listeners in with its emotional weight.

“The song is about grieving and loss, exploiting those emotions for cold, hard cash,” the Showbiz411 report states. Listeners hear a vocal style that evokes the late pop star Bonnie Tyler blended with Stevie Nicks, yet the performance is entirely generated and does not involve any human singer.

Supermarket freezers across Europe struck by another cyber-attack – End Time Headlines – Nov. 2, 2026

Excerpt: According to a report from The Guardian, supermarket chains in Sweden, Belgium, and Luxembourg confirmed that refrigerator and freezer temperatures spiked unexpectedly overnight, raising urgent fears of a coordinated cyber-attack mirroring a massive strike on French stores last month that destroyed millions of euros in food.

Sweden’s Coop chain told the daily Aftonbladet on Monday that six of its stores had been affected. ICA stated it was “aware that a limited number of stores were affected by an incident overnight which impacted their refrigeration and freezer systems.”

Dutch retailer Ahold Delhaize, which reported a cybersecurity incident to Dutch police last month, described an “IT incident” that struck fridges and freezers across dozens of its supermarkets in Belgium and Luxembourg. Spokesperson Sarah De Meester said the chain confirmed rising temperatures in the cooling systems and that the matter was under investigation.

Blue Wave Floods The US, But The Storm Keeps Raging And It's Business As Usual – The WinePress – Nov. 5, 2026

“Clowns to the left me 🤡, jokers to the right 🃏, and here I am stuck in the middle with you 🤪!”

Excerpt: There is not much for me to say, to be honest. The Democratic blue wave that swept the United States of America this week isn’t all that surprising to anyone that was paying attention to what was happening: we discussed it at different times many months ago when it seemed like ‘Dump Trump’ was the agenda, and it essentially played out that way; and should Trump get blasted, internally it was being reported that he’d become “Mr. Veto” and he’d be a lame duck, while still maintaining the collapsing Ponzi scheme and protecting his buddies.

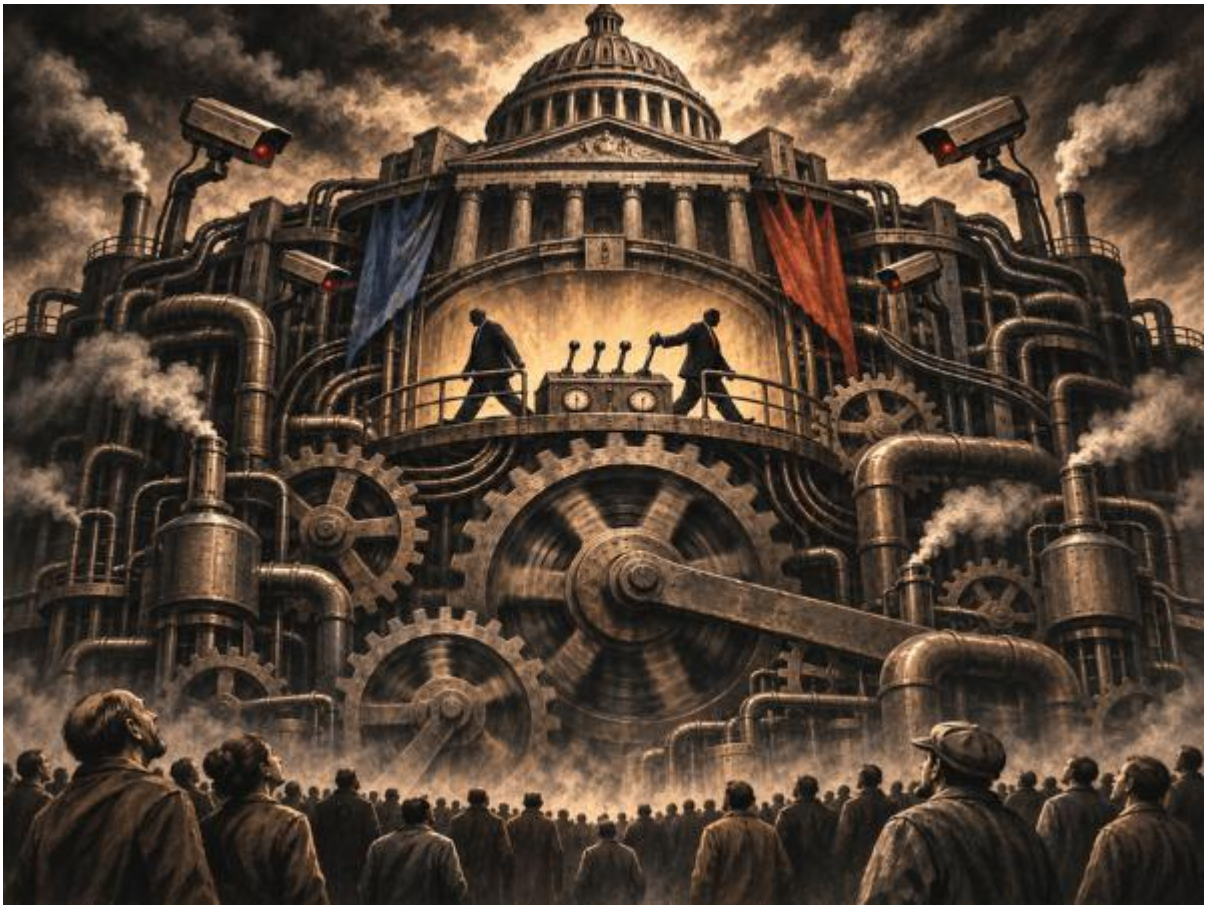

Trump and his administration have done next to nothing of the things they promised, and all the things that they said they were not going to do they did.

And that’s why they and the GOP got skewered, even in states that are historically Republican. A number of disillusioned MAGA voters either stayed home or voted Democrat, not because they like Dems, but because they want to see an end to Trump and his regime.

I could link to scores and scores of articles I have written simply rehashing the sheer lunacy, corruption and totalitarian remarks made by Trump and the GOP these last two years.

ELECTION ANALYSIS: The names and faces may change, but the beast system remains in place – Leo Hohmann – Nov. 4, 2026

Is the sky falling after the bloodbath of Nov. 3? Or will it be business as usual with more deficit spending on needless foreign wars and investments in the machinery of the digital slave state?

Excerpt: I'm getting lots of hysterical messages from people this morning.

The sky is falling. Democrats swept both houses of Congress and booted several red-state governors.

Oh no! What should we do? Islam has taken over Michigan. The "Marxists" have taken over Georgia.

One lady even asked me if we should pack up and leave Georgia now that the state has gone blue.

Florida Gov. Ron DeSantis called Tuesday's results "an extinction-level event" that will take the Republicans years to recover from.

This type of overreaction comes out of a completely tone-deaf mentality, and an ignorance of what's been going on in America for the last 60-plus years.

I'm here to tell you, nothing has changed purely as a result of last night's election returns. Let me repeat that. Nothing has changed. Just as nothing has changed for 60 years. At the very top of the power structure, the same people are running the show. They just reshuffle the chairs every two to four years.

Yes, the destruction of America gets sped up over time, and yes the progression may stall for a time on one front while accelerating on another depending on who is in office, but the overall trend toward greater and greater tyranny always moves forward. It never retreats. So, when we finally get driven over the cliff, it will be impossible to point your finger solely to the "left" or the "right." That's a false paradigm meant to distract and deceive.

The Very Real "Grid Down" Scenario From Cyberattacks –

Propehcy News Watch - By Michael Snyder/Economic Collapse Blog - November 04, 2026

Excerpt: We live at a time when we are facing a relentless wave of AI cyberattacks, and they are becoming insanely sophisticated. On Monday, refrigeration units in supermarkets all over Europe were successfully attacked.

But I am not going to talk about that today.

In this article, I am going to talk about the sort of AI cyberattack that could turn off your electricity for an extended period of time. This is not a theoretical threat. Hackers have been repeatedly attacking Internet-exposed programmable logic controllers in recent months, and a successful attack could potentially plunge a large portion of the country into darkness right in the middle of the winter.

Evaluating these types of threats is what GovAI does.

It is literally their job.

So perhaps we should pay attention when GovAI tells us that a single AI cyberattack "could cut off power to 100 million people and cost the economy $100 billion"...

GovAI specializes in examining AI threats and risk management. It claims its mission is to help governments and industries to "navigate the transition to a world with advanced AI." Recently, it has forecast what would happen if AI shut down part of the US electrical grid. Such a cyberattack could cut off power to 100 million people and cost the economy $100 billion. The financial forecast assumes a weeklong blackout.

Because our system is decentralized, a single cyberattack would not cause a nationwide blackout.

The Senate STROKE CRISIS: Are mRNA Shots Claiming Our Lawmakers? – Exposing The Darkness – Nov. 3, 2026

Excerpt: A startling 9% of Senate Democrats have suffered strokes post-vaccination. With mounting data linking the shots to long-term vascular damage, the mRNA aftermath is unfortunately expected to continue.

The pattern emerging in the halls of Congress has become impossible to ignore. A significant portion of the Democratic Senate caucus has suffered strokes following the mass injection campaign.

According to new research shared by MPH Nicolas Hulscher, this is not merely coincidence; it is the predictable result of biological harm.

Two major studies provide a clear mechanism: mRNA and spike proteins have been discovered inside the brains of hemorrhagic stroke victims years after vaccination, where they continue to degrade vessel walls.

Furthermore, an expansive 85-million-person study indicates that Pfizer recipients face a staggering 269% increased risk of stroke. While the establishment media buries the story and public health officials remain silent, the list of affected lawmakers continues to grow.

South Africa's Biggest City Faces Total Infrastructure Collapse – ZeroHedge - by Tyler Durden - Monday, Nov 02, 2026

Over 50 years of communist anti-colonialism in the third world, aided by some liberal governments in the west, has provided uncomfortable truths about what works and what doesn't when it comes to human civilization. The first and most controversial truth is that, in many cases, third world societies are self destructive and incapable of maintaining the most basic of necessities.

The second controversial truth is that these same societies run by western interests function far better. All vital infrastructure is maintained and the people have upward mobility. In other words, western colonialism works. No matter what leftists and anti-colonial activists claim, time has proven them wrong.

Case in point: South Africa.

South Africa is like a living laboratory experiment; a real time test case for the inevitable failures of third world and far-left governance. After the end of Apartheid and the takeover of race communists under Nelson Mandela, the 75% black African population took over the bulk of governance.

This "revolutionary" government proceeded to impose 145 race-based laws largely designed to remove white South Africans from positions of political influence and from the workforce; giving preferential treatment to black South Africans regardless of merit. The results of this process are undeniably bleak.

The country has been suffering an accelerating decay for the past 20 years, but it appears that this collapse is about to hit a crescendo. Johannesburg, the industrial and financial center of the nation, is about to face a total infrastructure breakdown on a level that could lead to a humanitarian disaster and the deaths of numerous people.

Complaints of throttled water supplies have been growing. Recent reports suggest Johannesburg's water network is under severe strain as of November, with widespread low pressure, intermittent supply, and prolonged outages in multiple areas. Residents in some suburbs report going weeks without consistent running water. If governance, funding, and maintenance do not improve, the system faces permanent shutdown.

Looting And Chaos Erupt In Germany, Molotov Cocktails In Paris, As Europe Slides Deeper Into Crisis – ZeroHedge - by Tyler Durden - Sunday, Nov 01, 2026

Excerpt: Europe appears to have been thrown into an accelerated timeline of crises colliding at once, whether far-left social unrest in France, which has spread to several other countries, the unfolding debt crisis in France, or the political crisis in Poland that erupted in the last 24 hours. The momentum is troubling and concerning.

For the third Saturday in a row, Paris looked like a city under lockdown. More than 40 metro and RER stations were closed, and shopkeepers along the route boarded up their windows with plywood or kept their shutters down.

France's seats of power, including the Élysée Palace, the prime minister's office, and the National Assembly, were heavily guarded, even though the authorized march took place several miles to the east. Overnight curfews also restricted access to Place de la République and Les Halles, two areas ransacked on Oct. 17.

Some 70,000 police and gendarmes were deployed nationwide, and Nuñez said 40,000 checks had been carried out on roads and in train stations, 15,000 of them in the Paris region, to intercept weapons. Face coverings, Halloween masks included, were banned around the demonstrations.

France

Tens of thousands of left-wing demonstrators marched along the eastern edge of Paris on Saturday, in a third straight weekend of nationwide protests marked by a Molotov cocktail attack on a gendarme, clashes in several major cities, and a call by far-left student unions for new blockades of high schools and universities from Tuesday.

As Etienne Fauchaire reported for The Epoch Times*, the Interior Ministry counted 320,000 demonstrators across France, including 70,000 in Paris, down from 410,000 the previous Saturday and roughly 550,000 on Oct. 17, when rioters looted hundreds of shops. Organizers claimed nearly 500,000 participants, including 200,000 in the capital.

By 9 p.m., 565 people had been arrested nationwide.

At an evening press conference, Interior Minister Laurent Nuñez said every march had contained groups of rioters and looters, "many of them driven by the ultra-left and the radical far left," who attacked police with the goal of reaching the city centers "with unheard-of violence."

He listed Paris, Montpellier, Toulouse, Rennes, Marseille, Nantes, Angers, and Tours as cities where groups of several hundred people had tried to break through police lines with mortar fireworks, paving stones, and other projectiles, and said firefighters had to put out numerous fires.

The most serious incident took place at the end of the Paris march near Porte de Charenton, where a Molotov cocktail landed on the shield of a mobile gendarmerie unit and set a gendarme alight before his colleagues put out the flames. He ended up being slightly injured, Nuñez said.

"When you throw a Molotov cocktail at a police line, I call that attempted murder," the minister said, stating that everything would be done to identify the perpetrators.

It's All Over Beginning November 19th: Men One-Shotted And Completely Neutralized – The WinePress – Nov. 1, 2026

Proverbs 14:34 Righteousness exalteth a nation: but sin is a reproach to any people.

Excerpt: In just a few weeks from now it's over, completely neutralized and taken down without a shot fired.

You say, 'Jacob, what in the world are you talking about?'

Well, on November 19th, the long-awaited release of the videogame Grand Theft Auto VI is finally set to drop.

Grand Theft Auto VI is Now Set to Launch November 19, 2026

November 6, 2025

Hi everyone,

Grand Theft Auto VI will now release on Thursday, November 19, 2026.

We are sorry for adding additional time to what we realize has been a long wait, but these extra months will allow us to finish the game with the level of polish you have come to expect and deserve.

We want to thank you again for your patience and support. While the wait is a little longer, we are incredibly excited for players to experience the sprawling state of Leonida and a return to modern day Vice City.

Sincerely,
Rockstar Games

This is, of course, the videogame franchise that glorifies everything that is wrong with modern society, some of the worst things promoted as entertainment and fun.

To give you an idea of the significance of this, the previous iteration in the series, GTA V, is considered the second-best selling videogame in history, depending on the source.

Grand Theft Auto V was first released in 2013 for the PlayStation 3 and Xbox 360. The game broke industry records becoming the fastest-selling entertainment product in history grossing over $800 million on launch, and over $1 billion after its first three days. GTA V was later integrated for the next generation of video game consoles and PC.

I played it myself over a decade ago when it came out. The game is utterly depraved.

The Entertainment Software Rating Board (ERSB) rated the game "Mature" (M 17+), because of "Blood and Gore, Intense Violence, Mature Humor, Nudity, Strong Language, Strong Sexual Content, and Use of Drugs and Alcohol."

They additionally note instances of torture, prostitution, and "a brief instance of necrophilia (no nudity is depicted)."

Who Verifies Artificial Intelligence? When AI Learns Jew-Hate –

Prophecy News Watch - By Pierre Rehov/Gatestone Institute - October 31, 2026

Excerpt: Artificial intelligence (AI) is quietly replacing the institutions through which the West once transmitted knowledge. Students who a generation ago consulted teachers and libraries now consult with often extremely unreliable chatbots. Reportedly 54% of American teenagers already use AI apps such as ChatGPT and its peers for schoolwork. Journalists, lawyers and civil employees are following the same path.

This deserves serious attention. After submitting OpenAI's ChatGPT, Anthropic's Claude, Google's Gemini and Meta's Llama to more than 34,000 queries about Jews, Israel, the Holocaust and antisemitic tropes, a March 2025 study by the Anti-Defamation League (ADL) of the four leading large language models (LLMs) found measurable anti-Jewish and anti-Israel bias in every model tested.

One detail stands out for its clinical precision. Asked whether the American government orchestrated the attacks of September 11, all four systems dismissed the alleged conspiracy theory without hesitation, but asked whether "the Jews" did, all but one wavered. Somewhere in their oceans of training data, the machines had learned that this particular lie deserved a hearing.

Anyone who understands how these systems are built will find the result unsurprising. An LLM model investigates nothing and weighs no evidence. It has digested a corpus larger than any one civilization has ever assembled, drawn from scientific literature and reference works, but also from the news media, discussion forums, activist blogs, propaganda outlets and billions of web pages whose accuracy no engineer can vouch for.

Nearly half of U.S. teens ages 13 to 17 say they've gambled in the last year, survey finds – NBC News - Oct. 29, 2026, 1:59 PM EDT -By David K. Li

"Teens who should be playing sports are betting on them," said the lead author of a new Rutgers University report on gambling by adolescents and young adults

Excerpt: More than 40% of American teens ages 13 to 17 say they've gambled in the past year, according to a survey published Wednesday, raising red flags about the popularity of betting among minors.

Researchers from Rutgers University's Center for Gambling Studies surveyed nearly 1,700 Americans between 13 and 27, and found that 52.5% of the respondents said they had gambled. Among those 17 and under — for whom gambling is illegal — the share was nearly 43%.

Disney World Mickey Mouse impersonator and 'worst of worst' football coach among nearly 300 busted in sex sting – New York Post - By Patrick Reilly - Published Oct. 30, 2026, Excerpt: An ex-Disney World Mickey Mouse impersonator and 12 coworkers were among nearly 300 accused creeps busted in a Florida sex sting that also netted four Universal employees, a football coach and a Navy sailor.

Colin Klaco, 24 — who a local sheriff noted had his Mickey Mouse character's "high spooky voice too, by the way" — was into diapers and brought two backpacks full that he planned to wear and put on the young boy he believed he was talking to online, a person who was actually an undercover agent, authorities said Friday.

One of the other busted fiends, Adam Snyder, was working at Roundup Rodeo restaurant in Disney's Toy Story Land — and did not even change out of his uniform when he was caught trying to have sex with a little boy, police said.

But the "worst of the worst" was Rashiod Crayton, a 31-year-old local youth football coach whose messages to a person he believed to be a 14-year-old girl were "so graphic" that Polk County Sheriff Grady Judd said he could not share the details.

"The focus here is to go out into the underworld and look for those who want to prey upon our folks," Judd said of the historic weeklong operation, dubbed "Polk Around and Find Out II."

Undercover agents busted 281 people in all — including child predators and human traffickers — and rescued 11 people who were being trafficked, Judd announced at a press conference. A majority of the arrests involved prostitution.

Thirty-two of those arrested were in the country illegally from nine different countries — including Italy, India, Peru, Ecuador and Haiti — 22 of which were illegally collecting public assistance totaling more than $100,000 a year altogether, according to the sheriff's

Judd described Klaco as the "nastiest person we've ever arrested."

Parts of Florida just saw half a year's worth of rain in 36 hours –

End Time Headlines – Nov. 3, 2026

According to a report from The Washington Post, portions of Florida's Space Coast were inundated by up to 28 inches of rain—roughly half an average year's total—in just 36 hours from Sunday afternoon into Monday evening. Radar estimates showed the most extreme totals concentrated in the stretch from Palm Bay to Valkaria in Brevard County, turning streets into rivers and prompting widespread flash flood emergencies.

Tampa-based meteorologist Jeff Berardelli captured the rarity of the deluge, writing, "I've NEVER seen anything like this." The Washington Post noted that the event carried a recurrence interval of more than 1-in-1,000 years in some locations, with slow-moving storm bands repeatedly training over the same areas.

Contributing factors included a deep plume of moisture drawn from record-warm waters in the southwestern Atlantic, weak mid-level winds that allowed storms to stall, and elevated background humidity linked to a record-strength El Niño on top of a warming climate.
